

GEOGRAPHY

In geography it is our aim that children gain an excellent knowledge of where places are and what they are like. We also hope to imbue children with an understanding of how the diverse geographical environments on our planet are interdependent and enable them to appreciate the impact of human activity on physical environments.

We aim for children to adopt an analytical approach and engage in independent geographical enquiry. In addition, we encourage children to use their knowledge and understanding to reach their own conclusions and communicate these effectively. Opportunities to engage in learning about geography are provided across our curriculum: there are significant geographical aspects to our topic work and many of our 'whole school' enrichment activities have their basis in geography.

We hope children leave Crabtree with a passion for geography and that they continue to be curious about the world and its people.
